Partner with YISC

Corporate partnerships

YISC is looking to build long-term relationships with Yukon businesses wanting to support environmental stewardship in the Yukon.

We also want to make it easy to get involved.

To do that, we don't use Gold, Silver or Bronze sponsorship packages. Instead, we start with a conversation about why you're interested, then see where that aligns with our capacity and community needs.

Some partnerships look like annual funding that keeps our programs running. Others look like support for a specific stewardship project. Some partners contribute equipment, transportation, professional expertise or other useful services. And we even support others, through education and training, in making commitments to prevent the spread of invasives within their own work.

The goal is to find something that is useful to YISC, meaningful to Yukoners, and worthwhile for you.

There are also opportunities for appropriate recognition. Every summer, YISC works face-to-face with over 500 people through weed pulls, workshops, training and community events. Most are local working professionals who have chosen to spend their time engaging with environmental stewardship; a particularly relevant community for organizations working in land, water, environment or related fields.

Interested? Let's have a conversation. Tell us what matters to your organization, we'll tell you what we're working on, and we'll see if there's a useful way to work together.

Partnerships support YISC's work; they don't imply YISC endorsement or give partners influence over our programs or positions.
